

How can I be this body? As one can move and shape the body, but who would think like they can move themselves!? For that would imply one to move the other to be moved. No one thinks that they are not intact. Yet we add additional inventory which is secondary and tertiary to our one true self. These extraneous properties are temporary; find that which is permanent, in which, time and space appear.